To acquaint ourselves with Capitol Reef we stopped at the parking areas and viewpoints, jumped out of the car and shot photos.

Jumpshots:

Nameless photogenic rocks

Nameless but seductively twisted tree

Sunset Point
(There was no sunset... it was morning.)

Goosenecks
(A gooseneck in this context is a hairpin curve in a river. This river has two adjacent goosenecks, making it worthy of getting out of the car and walking to the observation platform. OOOooo! Two goosenecks!)

Egyptian Temple

(The sign along the road said Egyptian Temple. However, the 4-color glossy US Government park handout shows this rock to be Egyption Temple. Our curiosity was piqued so we googled Egyption. You might be interested in what we discovered.)

Grand Wash

Navajo Dome

(The Navajos are two hundred miles from here. The rock is pointy. We're certain the park service sometimes uses a random name generator.)

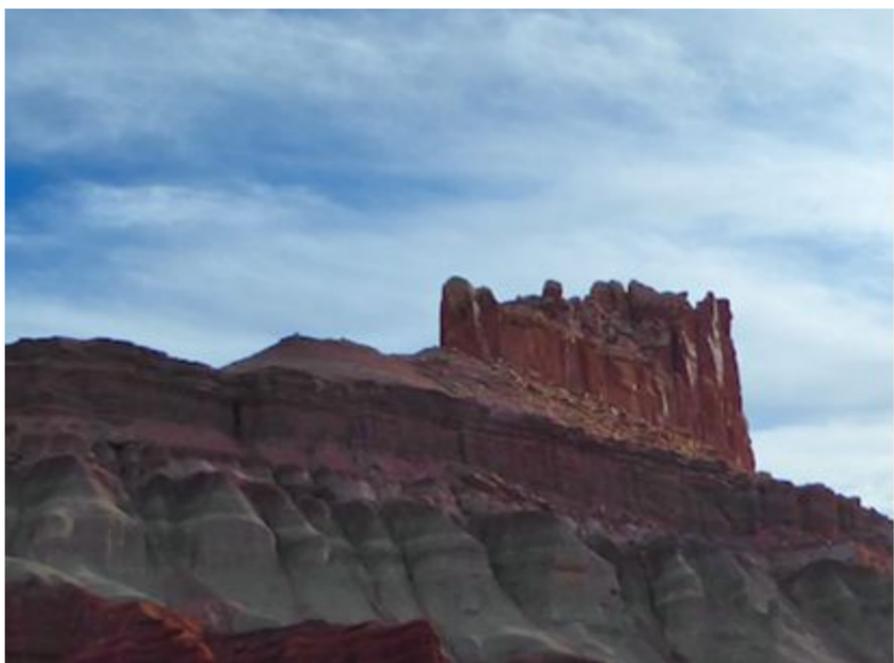

Fremont River

(Fremont was a general.)

Hickman Bridge

(Have no idea who Hickman was. Unless of course it was Dwayne Hickman who played Dobie Gillis on TV. Nah.)

The Castle

We drove by but they're not shown on account of we got tired of doing this:

Twin Rocks

Chimney Rock

Panorama Point

Capitol Dome

Lunch

Afterwards we looked at every item in every gift shop in Torrey, UT.
Spent the better part of 45 minutes.
Hike tomorrow.
