We spent almost all of our travel day on US-50, going from La Junta to Moab. Checked into an overpriced, shabby B&B in Castle Valley. Thank you TripAdvisor.

At least we caught some good scenery through the windows.

These rocks are Dillons something or other I'm too tired to look it up. The water is the Colorado or the Arkansas or a dammed up creek.

We passed through Olathe, CO.

In Kansas, Olathe is a Shawnee word meaning beautiful.

We don't know what it means in Colorado.

And finally a red rock welcome to Utah along UT-128.

What will tomorrow bring?
